Poetry.

When?

BY SUSAN COOLIDGE.

If I were told that I must die to-morrow,
That the next sun
Which sinks should bear me past all fear and sorrow
For any one,
All the fight fought, all the short journey through,
What should I do?

I do not think that I should shrink or falter,
But just go on,
Doing my work, nor change nor seek to alter
Aught that is gone;
But rise and move and love and smile and pray
For one more day.

And, lying down at night for a last sleeping,
Say in that ear
Which hearkens ever, "Lord, within Thy keeping
How should I fear?
And, when to-morrow brings Thee nearer still,
Do thou Thy will!"

I might not sleep for awe; but perceful, tender,
My soul lie
All the night long; and when the morning splendor
Flushed o'er the sky,
I think that I could smile—could calmly say,
"It is His day."

But, if a wonderous hand, from the blue yonder,
Held out the scroll,
On which my life was writ, and I with wonder
Beheld unroll
To a long centry's end its mystic clew,
What should I do?

What could I do, oh! blessed Guide and Master,
Other than this:
Still to go on as now, not slower, faster,
Nor fear to miss
The road, although so very long it be,
While led by Thee?

Step after step, feeling Thee close behind me,
Although unseen,
Through thorns, through flowers, whether the tempest hide Thee,
Or heavens serene,
Assured Thy faithfulness cannot betray,
Thy love decay.

I may not know, my God, no hand revealeth
Thy counsels wise;
Along the path a deepening shadow stealeth;
No voice replies
To all my questioning thought, the time to tell,
And it is well.

Let me keep on abiding and unfearing
Thy will always,
Through a long century's ripening fruition,
Or a short day's,
Thou canst not come too soon; and I can wait
If Thou come late.

Selected Story.

How I Married the Captain.

I had never had an adventure. I think most people counted me a very quiet girl, drifted like a sea shell into a corner of the great world. The tides passed over my head; there was a shipwreck and disaster; there was sailing out of argosies; there was a dancing and music among the voyagers; but nothing surged me out of my sea-swept niche. Poor Elizabeth Grey! I said aloud, will the tide ever reach you?

All this sea talk, I think, grew out of the little pink dress I was sewing on that morning. Rosy Fox was going to Europe, and this was one of a dozen or two tiny dresses I had made for her. Going to Europe! Rosy, a little prattling thing that didn't yet know one street from another in her native city. What would she do in Europe—what would Europe do for her? But for me the very thought seemed like a glimpse of heaven—a sweet, forbidden glimpse; for what had I to do with change, or pleasure, or excitement?

A seamstress, orderly, exemplary—an orphan who had decently buried her mother, and who creditably supported her little brother at school—such was my brief outward record.

This morning a strange restlessness beset me of an unaccountable yearning, like a wooing whiff of ocean air, beckoned me away. Why should I stay and vegetate in one spot forever? Could I not earn my living elsewhere as here? Did not folks use needles in Kamschaca and in New Zealand? Could I not take my sewing to another market?

The thought stood on the verge of my mind, hovering, timorous, unreal, its wing poised for flight. I had no money. The vision vanished, and in the gray after-light my path looked dustier, darker, more straightened than ever.

But this was not to be a day like other days. It stands apart in my memory now, illuminating that whole year, as I have seen a clump of cardinal flowers illumine a whole gray meadow.

A knock came at the open door of my room, and it was flung back sharp and suddenly. Very few visitors ever climbed to my little third-story apartment; seldom any one but testy Madame Padwelle, for whom I worked. This could not be the Modame's footfall, so heavy and brisk. I looked up, and there stood Captain David, my mother's old friend.

A tall, big-boned, grizzled man, quick-decided, and full of vigor as a Northern pine, with a flavor of old-time quaintness about him—a thrifty, well-to-do man, whose ship had carried freight into almost every part on the globe, but chiefly to the West Indies.

I had not seen the captain since I was a little girl, but I knew his face and figure instantly. The tall hat he wore when in landsman's rig, the red bandana he flourished, were things of memory. Many an odd sea shell had he brought me, and many a dainty from far-off lands had shown his remembrance of my mother. His sharp gray eye was full of kindly humanity; I remembered that eye, and how it had stood to me in childhood for illimitable geographical knowledge, glimpses of polar seas, and fathomless waters, and all the unspeakable mysteries of the unknown world.

"Well, my little girl, how's all the folks?" said the captain, taking off his steeple-crowned hat as he entered.

The familiar voice, the hearty grasp of his muscular hand took me back to my girlhood agaid; for an instant it seemed as if my mother were living, and all the weight of care and loneliness were lifted from my shoulders. Only an instant. The tears gathered in my eyes, and I said, abruptly:

"There are no folks, captain."

The captain's conteuance fell. He seemed inwardly to reprove himself for his hasty pleasantry, recollecting that this was the time for conventional solemnity. Seating himself with gingerly care on one of my slim-legged chairs, he wiped his forehead with his red bandana.

"I know, I know," he said uneasily. "I mean—how's Jim?" with a hasty clutch at the name, as if to save himself from further mishap.

"Oh," said I, cheerfully, anxious to put him to his ease, "Jim's doing famously. He'll take the prize in languages at his school next year."

"And you are working yourself to death to stuff the lad with Greek and Latin?"

I fell to laughing. "No, captain, not exactly. But Jim's too smart and too good to be kept in the city, and I have to be away so much of the time sewin."

"You look like it," said the captain, gruffly. "What do you live on? Shirts at sixpense a piece?"

"No, indeed!" I cried indignantly. "I sew on pretty things—robes and dresses; see this!" and I held up Rosy's pretty pink dress. It glowed in the sunshine, its flounces and frillings trembling about like a superabundant growth of petals.

The captain eyed it approvingly "pretty enough," he said. "It's got all your color in it, my little girl."

It was long since I had heard any one express kindly interest in me, and the words thrilled me with a strange feeling, intense, exquisite allied to pain.

"You ought to have a change of air," said the captain, seeing I made no answer.

The pretty dress seemed freighted with the visions I had while making it. Rosy glimpses out of the matter-of-course drudgery, the dingy and ashen hue of my habitual life, opened out of its folds.

"Captain," said I, abruptly, as I laid it carefully away, "how much does it cost to go to the West Indies?"

"By steam?"

"No; in your ship."

"Oh," said the captain, "I'm not fitted up for passengers. A tight little craft enough, but only to carry freight. Why? Know any one going?"

"I am. Captain, let me be freight.—Stow me away in the hatch or anywhere, only let me go! See, I have thirty dollars to pay my passage;" and I held up my purse. "Jim's quarter's all paid too!"

"The money's an immense temptation," said the captain, eying the slim purse humorously—"immense. I might lay by on it after one or two more voyages."

"And captain, you know I've a cousin out there somewere—an engineer of something on a plantation."

"Ay, that way blows the wind, does it? Well, well, my child, I'll think about it. It might do you no harm, and, as you say you might marry the engineer when you find him."

"Now, captain, you know I never said that."

"No? well, it put a bit of color into your cheeks, Lisbeth, and that's a good thing to see, however it comes. I'll think about it, child. It's poor traveling in a freight vessel, but many's the trip my wife and I took together when she was living."

Long ago the captian had lost his young wife, a year or two after their marriage. I had never seen her; but the captain's faithful remembrance of her was pleasant. She was a sort of saintly recollection to him, brightening and sweetening his rude life, and keeping her niche in his heart forever.

Three days passed. I waited, I sewed I pricked my fingers perhaps a little more than usual; I looked out of the window possibly a little oftener. Madame Padwelle scolded me Madame Padwelle coaxed me, and finally, in a huff, madame paid me up and left, severely intimating that she would be glad to employ me again when I "felt like work."

Then came the captain.

"Well?" queried I.

"Well," answered he, "you'll find it close quarters and a pretty hot voyage; but there's deck room."

Deck room! It was just the one thing I wanted—and then I knew that the captain had consented.

I shall not tell you much about that voyage. It stands yet in my mind in the same relation as a dream—vague, without sharpness of outline, with no separation of periods of time; one big, bountiful remembrance of a season of infinite rest, when, adrift between air and ocean, I seemed without bodily identity; for the things that had marked my identity hitherto had been, but were no longer.

I was not seasick. A strange, vision-like sensation wrapped me about, a faintness as of a spirit coming nearly to life in a new world, having left the old incumbrance of the flesh, with the old cares, far away on the far-aways shore.

There was nothing to do—that is, nothing for me to do—no living to get, no exertion to make. I seemed an atom in the great sea of sky and water; the great God was taking care of me, and the great ocean clasping me in its infinite arms of peace.

I was treated like a lady—a rare and dilicious thing to one inured to hard usage and to earning her bread in a big bustling city. When the intense heat made me ill, and the rosy cheeked mate's wife, who had been my companion hitherto, sucumbed to it also, the captain took care of me himself. Sometimes he carried me in his strong arms up to the hammock swinging on deck; sometimes he brought me with his own brawny kindly hand my bowl of watergruel. At odd times, when nothing else called him, he furbished up his rusty stock of schooling, and read me some queer old sea story, resurrected from the depths of his big wooden chest. Rough, brown and burly, the sailors were all my friends; they touched their caps to me; they pointed out the dolphins and porpoises, and scared me with the prospect of whales and imaginary sharks. Their dark faces and sturdy forms made a solid background to my dream land, and gave it a picturesque touch of reality

But by-and-by all this came to an end. Out of the dream-land voyage we sailed into dreamland itself.

One morning I went up on deck and, behold! the gates of paradise seemed open to me.

The vessel lay anchored in a lovely harbor. Sapphire-blue shone the water, edged where it touched the beach with a line of lace-like foam. Beyond rose hill above hill, crowned with glowing foliage and arched by the azure sky.

At the foot of these hills clustered a group of long, low, flat-roofed buildings, unlike any I had ever seen. They seemed to have grown out of the same soil that nourished the cocoa and palm waving above them. Intense color, vivid, jewel-like, shone everywhere about me. I rubbed my eyes. My last glimpse of land had been the gray and busy shores of New York. Had I, indeed, passed out of my dim and cobwebbed life into the "glory that should be revealed?"

A strange, melodious jargon greeted my ears; a musical "carambo!" hissed between the teeth. This could hardly be the accent of serraph. Looking down I saw a fleet of gaily painted boats, from which a throng of red, half-naked islanders climbed like monkeys up the sides of the ship. They gesticulated, they chattered, they hurried agile about the ship, chattering their delicious Spanish—a mellifluous cornucopia of vowels without angles, without sharpness—the living expression of the strange scene upon which I had fallen.

"Porto Rico!" said Captain David, as he passed busily on his way.

But busy as the captain was, he had not forgotton me. Before nightfall a snug little "casca," owned by a kindly Spanish woman, received me. A quiet place, a little beyond the busy town; white floors, vast rooms open to the roof with here and there in wide perspective a chair, a table, a flower wreathed niche for the Virgin. Such was my new home.

Though apart from the town, it was not isolated. Past its windows, whose jealousies only veiled, but did not hide the outside world, drifted daily the characteristic sights of a tropic town. Overladen mules and sleepy Spanish ponies, bearing panniers of fruits—oranges, bananas, mammee-apples, and I know not what of shining and nameless things—moved leisurely down to the quay bestrode by sullen slaves, their dark faces set off by now and then a scarlet vest or a great overshadowing "sombrero;" or a lazy, half-naked native loitered by with a picturesque load of dried plantain leaves for thatching his mountain hut, where he lived free, independent, and, in his expressive phrase, "solemly poor."

My landlady, the Senora Marie, was a great, motherly, kind-hearted woman, a widow with a brood of olive-skinned, wild-eyed little ones to look after. For them she was very ambitious; for their sakes she made the dainty "pates" of guava and cocoa nut, which her slave Liza took down to market, poising them on her head after the ancient fashion, which is the only fashion of things in Porto Rico; for their sakes she rented the pleasant rooms in her casa to whomsoever the tides and winds brought her from sea; and for their sakes, no doubt, had she been an American woman, she would have set herself to active industry, and labored "diligently with her hands." As it was, she cared for them and planned for them after her own sort, and loved them hugely. She listened delighted while they clustered round me, chattering their dainty lingo, wondering over my light locks, my foreign dress, and coaxing me with a winning witchery to talk to them in English.

Sometimes the captain dropped in upon us; he was taking in cargo. Great hogsheads or sugar must have been a load on his mind, but he found room for me also. Sometimes he took me out before sunrise for a stroll on the hills, Sometimes we rode on horseback to some distant sugar plantation, or we visited some oleander-hid hacienda whose owner he knew. I was getting along famously, he said; the senora had told him all with her fingers, eyes and tongue how she liked me, how golden my hair was, and how I got on with the children. Would I like to live in Porto Rico?

Oh, I liked it unspeakably! The red soil, the hills, the straggling roads, the cocoa trees, the far sugar cane plantations with their tall chimneys looming against the sky; it was all beautiful—even this lazy life that lived itself without effort, seemed to put to shame the busy, undignified scramble we had called existence.

"I love it all, captain!" I exclaimed.

"Well," said the captain, laughing, "we must hunt up our engineer and see what can be done about it."

But Senora Marie had a new idea.

"The little senorita is happy here; doubtless some of her people long ago were Spanish, eh? She tells me she is not rich—money no mucho, eh? Let her stay with me in my casa; I will give her plenty mucho to eat and to wear; I will take her to my friends. They have haciendas, plantations, plenty slaves. She shall teach the children and be happy. Eh, what say you, senor captain?"

Senor captain said nothing for some time. He wiped his forehead with his red bandana; he looked over at me with a searching glance; he knit his brows. Finally he rose in his abrupt fashion. "She might do worse," he said, and he took himself to his ship.

The hot day grew hotter and hotter: it flamed to close; it died with gorgeous burning behind the hills; the sudden blackness of tropic night came on; but he did not come again.

I lay awake long that night listening to the wash of the surf on the distant shore, and hearing the lonely cry of the watch man calling out the hour in the solitary steets of the town. How strange it would to be grow familier with all these things, and live in this strange land forever!

I said nothing to Senora Marie about her proposition. People in these islands are in no haste for a decision. Perhaps I should gratefully accept at last. Perhaps I had miscalculated the captain's kindness—it might not pay him to carry me back. And what did I want to go back to? To the struggle for bread again? To the narrow room under the roof—to the narrow life of penury? Here I was rich or might be; even the poorest here had his plantain hut and his patch of banana.

Yet something in me ached at the thought that the good ship with its tidy cabin, its kindly captain and crew, would go out from me, sailing through the mists of the great ocean, and leave me drifted among the palms and cocoas, a worthless unmissed thing, not worth taking home.

I tried to be sensible, to look the matter in the face, and to rejoice that fate had provided for me so unexpectedly. And when day after day passed I began to think that the captain had regarded the thing as final, and after his sailor fashion had departed without even an adieu. I had seen him conclude a bargain in just such brief manner.

Restless and weary with a long night of wakefulness, I rose one morning early and set out for the shore. Early though it was, however, none of our household being astir, I found the tropic world awake before me; along the road to the harbor wagon after wagon, laden with sugar hogsheads and drawn by rough, savage looking bulls or unkept oxen, were passing on their way to the wharf.

Etiquette in the West Indies does not allow a lady to be seen abroad unattended, so hastly clarabering up the hillside bordering the road, I sought a narrow, sheltered path I knew of, which, crawling among the scraggy bushes, kept its difficult way to the river.

Weary with my exertions, I sat down a moment to rest. Just here, at the turn of the path, an opening through wood and rising hill gave glimpse of the ocean, with here and there the faint tracing of mast and sail, as from the far outer world an occasional ship sought harbor.

As I sat there, leaning my head on my hand, I believe I felt the first touch of homesickness I had ever known. At least my little room at home was shaded and quiet; at least its poverty and nakedness were not displayed on the roadside. Here was I with my dream all ended, even in the midst of my dreaming. Above me palm and tamarind feathered the sky, the jewelshine of tropic leaf and flower, splendor, color everywhere, and I alone, gray, solitary and cold.

Absorbed in thought, I know not how long I sat. A quick step startled me It was not a native step; no native sets his foot kown as if it were of the slightest importance when he lifted it again. There was meaning and energy in this footfall, and I hastily rose to face the intruder. It was my gray, sturdy, faithful captain.

"Well, my little girl!" cried the hearty, familiar voice; "how's this? Out here alone this time o'day? The women folks will all be down upon you for breaking rules."

"I—I thought you had sailed." was my reply, as I burst into tears in spite of myself.

Whereas the captain burst into that honest friendly laugh of his, which seemed so thoroughly to set aside trouble and difficulty, shedding them like so many cobwebs.

"Well, well!" he said; "well, well, well!"

Which was his sole comment.

Taking my hand under his arm, he drew me away from the path, up toward the leve of the hill, where a little breeze stirred slumbrously, and a solitary lake, shut in with foliage of bamboo and clambering vine, cooled the air.

"Rest here a bit and wipe your eyes," said the captain, spreading his red handkerchief on the ground for me to sit on. "I am on my way to Senora Marie's to breakfast, but there's no hurry. Neither she nor all her lazy slaves can get it ready before twelve o'clock, you know." He looked at his watch with a seaman's exactitude, and sitting down beside me, opened his great umbrella over my head to shut out the sun. I felt sheltered and comforted.

"So you thought I had sailed, Lisbeth?" he said. "You must have a high opinion of your poor old captain's good manners."

The tears welled to my eyes again. I could not answer.

"Tut, tut!" said my companion, cheerily. "You must not be so downhearted, Lisbeth, when Mrs. Marie has taken so kindly to you. But you'll get on better when the ship's fairly out of sight. You'll feel more settled."

"If you were here," I broke forth.

"Oh, what do you want of me? You'll be with the young senors and senoritas, and all the rest of it. They will treat you like a princess. I'm no company for such.

"THE KING IS DEAD—LONG LIVE THE KING."

Human life teems with strange practical contradictions and inconsistancies. Precept and example rarely travel together, and it would be a noticable sight to view principle and practice going hand in hand. All this results, simply, from human weakness; we mean to be better than we are. We form our determinations when the mind is for a time unalloyed with prejudice, unwarped by bad influences, but when we get out from under the tuition and control of our better judgments and natures, and surrender to the advice and direction of those with whom we come in contact, we forget our good resolves, and diverge from the path of rectitude and justice which we had marked out for our feet to tread, and yet, in our worst moments, we revert to these precepts and principles, and seem to wish them to live, despite the fact, that we refuse to nourish them, nay, more, we sometimes turn aside to fan the cold ashes which lie upon the hearthstones of our better natures, to bring back life, and heat, to what has died of our neglect, and thus occur these antitheses in our histories as we write them. Our late fratricidal war entailed upon the people a bitterness of spirit, and feeling which is lamentable to behold. Especially is that feeling rife in the South. The Southern people, taught to believe that they were fighting for a just and holy cause, losing not only that for which they battled, but losing their sons, brothers and fathers, and living to see their homes desolated, and the accumulated profits of a life time of labor destroying, emerged from the terrible carnival of blood, with their feelings toward their Northern brethren turned to the bitterness of gall. Then appeared, in all their pristine beauty and wisdom, the sentiment "Blessed are the peace makers." Then did patriots and philanthropists see looming up before them, a work to fill their hands and hearts, and the thoughts of all the really good and great were: Ours be the task of pouring oil on the troubled waters, and echoing the divine command, "Peace, be still." But it was necessary that peace and reconciliation should have a firm, and lasting foundation; and when the sons of freedom and justice came together to council on the great work before them, it is not strange that Satan came also. The effects of these evil influences are to-day felt, and the results of their machinations clearly seen. While loudly proclaiming that they desire harmony, they labor to stir up discord, and animosity; and directing their efforts to the bad elements of our natures, they succeed but too well. They strive to array the North against the South, by maligning our rules, misconstruing their words, and misinterpreting their acts. GRANT is held up to the South as an unfeeling monster. Congress, as devoid of justice and mercy, and the "Universal Yankees," as gloating over their downfall and humiliation. Knowing the effect of all this is to keep alive this sectional feeling of bitterness, and hatred, and yet claiming that they would have all our citizens come together on terms of affiliation, they but echo the antithetical sentiment "The king is dead.—long live the king." It is not strange that practice should differ from precept, but of all inconsistencies, the strangest is, a precept, inconsistant with itself, and this strange incongruity is daily seen in the present Fusion party. Headed by the "Chief of Yankees," claiming to have in its ranks a majority of the Northern men; pretending to be the party of reconciliation; avowing that they would wipe out all recollections of the past, and harmonize the discordant elements, and yet by word and deed striving to add worm wood to the bitterness of gall; Who can deny that their hail! and farewell! go out with the same breath, and while they announce the demise of sectional bitterness, they also proclaim its life and vitality. Ku Klux, fresh from their orgies, come to "clasp hands" with Northern bretheren! !, yet abate not one jot or tittle of their malignity and bitter hate "Original secessionist" join the Liberal Republican Party, and still claim that their views on the question of State rights and secession remain unchanged, and news paper editors, write in favor of HORACE GREELEY, with pens steeped in bitterness against the "Yankee Nation." Will any rational man doubt that these men believe in the immortality of those issues and principles settled by the arbitriment of the sword? No. For effect only, they proclaim their death. Hope is big within them that the "lost cause" shall revive, and renew its strength. The king is dead—long live the king.

EDITORIAL TALK WITH THE READER.

We often hear the world spoken of as a "battle-field," and frequently do we hear life termed a "conflict." Perhaps we accept these terms as correct in the sense designed, but do we attach due weight to these aphorisms? or do we look upon them as truths too deep for ordinary minds to fathom, and thus give an apathetical assent to such weighty and vitally important facts? Many seem to think they were born and launched upon the river of time, furnished with ample accomodations, and provisions for their journey, and have nothing to do but to sit idly and float down the stream, and out into the broad ocean of eternity. Some, it may be, are carried safely by the current past the eddies, over the rapids and shoals, down, down, where the river widens into the sea, and out beyond the reach of mortal vision, and we only know that a bark has glided by with its freight of listless humanity, and the vision floats out of our brain into blank forgetfulness. Others who start on the same aimless journey, are drifted by adverse winds onto the shores and are wrecked, and spend the remainder of their days bemoaning their unhappy lot until they, too, pass into the waters which lave the "echoless shores;" and the only picture which they stamp on our rememberance is that of a "broken reed," and the only sound that dwells in our ears, is the moan of heedless despair. Soon, all this will fade from our recollection, and the bark and its burden shall be to the world as though they had never been. Others, there are, who appear to think that lifes journey is in the opposite direction, and as soon as they are able, they turn the prow of their boat up the stream, catch hold of the oars, and begin to row against wind and current. Nothing daunts or deters them. Adversity but whets their ardor. They stimulate many to emulate their example, and when they, in turn, have passed beyond human sight, we find engraven upon us in undying characters, the bright example of industry and perseverence, and the world treasures the memory of those who have not lived in vain. Yes the world is a battle field and life is a conflict. Had this not been designed by the Great Artificer, our wants would have been supplied without our exertions, and we should have had no expectations, no longings. There would have been no conflicting elements in our natures, no anabition to be good, and great, no desire to be evil or to do wrong. We would be like the lilies of the valley weaving and spinning not, yet content that our mere creature comforts are supplied. We are all born with two conflicting forces in our natures—the good, and the evil, and life's conflict commences when we reach the age of accountability, and ceases not until the leaden sleep of death closes our weary eyes. Were it possible to live with no proclivity to do wrong, we would be but "camp followers" in the armies of humanity, and of us it could not be said, "They have fought the good fight." The man who has no appetite for streng drink, is entitled to no praise for being temperate, but the poor unfortunate, whose raging thirst like a maguet draws him toward his glass, and yet whose manhood principle resists the terrible presure, is a valliant soldier battling daily against evil tendencies, and crowning hisife with the mural wreath of victory. We all have our "besetting sins," and if we triumph over them, happy will be the victory and the victor, but if we are conquered by them, "woe be to the vanquished;" Among the enemies of virtuous humanity, are Pride, Hypocrasy, Averice, Uncharitableness, Dishonesty, They meet us in the open field, and in ambuscade; a wary vigilant enemy, ever attacking the weakest part of our line. How many of us surrender to the foe, and suffer ourselves to be bound hand and foot, and go through life, mere prisoners of war. Remember reader, He who framed us as we are, gave us the power to conquer all our enemies. To rise superior to all our besetments; and when at last the veil which hides the invisible shall be drawn aside, and we pass from out the smoke which canopies earth's battle ground, to have the proud satisfaction of knowing that we will be remembered by those left behind, as valliant soldiers who fought well, and nobly won the victory.

That other "newspaper around the corner" makes a characteristic reply to our comments on the Pittsburg Convention. The idea of getting "respectable recognition" from such a source, is about as ludicrous as that of the sun getting a respectable light from the moon. The whole reply is the silly billingsgate of a cowardly poltroon. Unable to rise to the dignity of argument, he hides behind the fence and cries "scat!" We do endorse Southern bravery wherever we find it, but in the Economist we recognize the opposite, and it merits our contempt.

Dr. RANSOM, of Tyrrell and Capt. COKE, of Chowan; the rival candidates for Presidential Electors held a joint discussion at the Court House in this town on Saturday last. Both are earnest and able men. We were in the audience with our Republican head on our shoulders, and our Republican heart beneath our vest, and consequently think "Our Man" won the day. Our Democratic friends may be of the contrary opinion. Let the truth prevail, and God speed the right.

Buckalew is the coming man in Pensylvania.—Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.

Yes, and the tail is the "coming part of a dog, but always behind."—Elizabeth City North Carolinian.

Yes! and the ears are the unbe-"coming" part of a donkey, or a Jack, or a (Palemon) John, whichever you like best! Take that now, John, for your Bray-zen effrontery!

Now Venus you needn't "get on your stinger." You evidently have just caught a glimpse of your own profile in the mirror, and judge us by yourself. A "donkey or a jack," ears are becoming to them, and our ears are becoming to us. If you have had either of the above named animals auricles tacked on the side of your head, we are sorry for you. It may spoil you for a man, but your friends can make some use of you, by standing you up side of a pig pen to break pumkins over.

"Twinkle twinkle little star."

While we write, the voters of Pennsylvania are deciding their State election. It is well known that dissensions exist in the Republican Party in that State, which may result in the election of a Democratic Governor. And yet, we cannot but think that Republican principle will prevail, and the Republican ticket be elected. Perhaps the wish is father to the thought, but, if defeated, it will be no criterian by which to judge the November election, for the whole party is united on GRANT and WILSON.

"A curtin rises in Pennsylvania."—Greeley Exchange.

Yes, but it is only a "Drop Curtin." It was up just long enough to show a man standing with his back to his friends. Ring it down and put out the light. The audience are disgusted and have left box, pit, and parquet. Another actor has appeared before the foot-lights and been hissed—Exit Andy.

Correspondence.

A Letter from the Editor.

PATRONS AND FRIENDS! The Editor greets you from the "Far West." He is on his travels. After more than three years of incessant labor on the editorial tread mill he took it into his head to take a few weeks vacation and spend them in a visit West. So fired with the order of the Oriental Pilgrim, he clasped the usual etceteras in his trunk, heroically turned his back upon the classic shores of Elizabeth City, took passage on the Steamer "Thomas Jefferson," spent a day sailing over the pellucid waters of the beautiful Pasquotank and along the Canal that has opened up the famed Dismal Swamp

"Through tangled juniper, beds of reeds,
Through many a fen where the serpent feeds."

to human civilization and travel, passing near the famous Lake where the Indian Maiden

"——all night long, by a firefly lamp, Paddled her white canoe."

reached Norfolk, the "City by the Sea," stepped on board that floating Palace the "Louisana," which carried us safely, as it pursued its arrowy flight upon the bosom of the Chesapeake to the Monumental City, then, after spending a few hours with valued friends, took a seat in the Baltimore and Ohio Express, was whirled as swift as eurus by the demon of Steam harnessed to the Juggernaut of Civilization, winding amid the dizzy crags and echoing mountain gorges of Maryland and Virginia, crosing through the vallies of Ohio to Barnesville, (where we spent a day, calling on the editor of the Enterprize a live man who publishes a live paper) then continuing our journey over the plains of Indiana and Illinois, flying over emerald seas of prairie and ebony seas of mud, until after a ride of over 1300 miles we arrived at the City of Sterling, a live enterprizing, growing City on the Great North Western Rail Road, at and near which place we are pleasantly and we believe profitably spending our time, and where we purpose remaining a week or so longer, studying the many threaded warf and woof of Western life and learning what we can of their habits and customs of this hospitable but never idle people.

That the country impresses us favorably we frankly confess, and yet the same energy, the same enterprize and the same labor brought to bear upon our "Sunny South" could not fail to make it equal, if not surpass the West, for it cannot be denied that we have many advantages the West does not possess.

The West is still growing. Her towns are rapidly increasing and enlarging, Rail Roads and Manufactures are doing the work. We must have them.

As for the political prospects, wherever we go, it seems almost one sided, all for Grant. The people of the Great West appear to take more interest in the Presidential contest than we expected. They say they are not yet ready to "swap horses." Here at Sterling Greeleyism is about "played out." This is a Republican City. The leading paper, the Gazette is exercising a strong and healthy influence. It is conducted by a gentleman of character and talent. We are already indebted to him for special favors.

In our next we will write more in detail.

P. JOHN.

Sterling Ill., Sept. 28th 1872.

From Dare County.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

Anson W. Talson of Hatteras Dare Co. a youth of 19, committed suicide by shooting himself on the morning of Sept. 14th. He had threatened for several days to put an end to his life, but his father not thinking that he meant to do it, paid no attention to his threats until the morning of the 14th, at breakfast he told his mother that he was "eating his last breakfast with her". His father told him that he had "boards enough to make a box to burry him in," his answer was "you had as well make it, for you will have it to do." He finished breakfast, stole a gun and went about a mile from home, discharged the gun reloaded it to suit his fancy, sat down and took off the shoe and stocking from his right foot, arose deliberately and placed the muzzle of the gun under his chin, his toe on the trigger, and then and there put a period to his existance. He appeared to be perfectly rational at the time, and from the time he was first heard to say he intended to do the deed. The cause of his distruction was a love affair between himself and a Miss Jane Burrus of Hatteras; according to his own account she had discarded him about a week previous to his death, and from that time he told every one who spoke to him on the subject that he intended to kill himself. It is remarkable that he selected a spot for the occasion in front of Miss B's residence and waited until she came to the window before he fired. A little girl by the name of Zilphia Ann Austin was a witness to the tragedy. The young lady, after seeing he was prepared to shoot himself turned her head in another direction to prvent seeing it done.

Maria A. Scaborough, a girl of 14, daughter of H. S. Scarborough one of the assistant keepers of Hatteras Light House, fell from a two story window of the keepers dwelling on the night of September the 2nd, while in a fit of Somnambulism. She hurt herself badly, but no bones were broken, and she is now doing well. S.

Our Missouri Letter.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 27th 1872.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

As I shall have a few hours of leisure to day, I thought I could not do better than spend a portion of the time in telling you a little of what the people are doing and talking in the way of politics here. And professing as I do, not to be a politician, will I hope be some apology for the letter before you.

On looking over the papers a day or two since I fine that the mongrel candidate for govenor, Judge Woodson, refuses to meet General Henderson his Republican opponent in discussion, alledging as reason that the mongrel State Com. had already marked out his way for him before General Henderson challenged him. Woodson's own friends say that he is afraid to meet Henderson in debate. Henderson's speech at St. Charles a few days since and in this City last night, were complete successes, he made it apparent to every unprejudiced mind that he was the right man for our next governor. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested by the immense crowds in attendance, and cheer after cheer echoed and reechoed through the still hours of the night as he finished his speeches.

The Republicans and Locofoco liberals both claim the State by large majorities, they however give up the idea of electing the brazen image at "Chapaqua" and seem as down in the mouth as he is at the certain prospect of General Grant being president for another four years.

We have the news here that Sen. Pool of your State is to come among us and canvass Misouri in the interest of General Grant. Already the Locofoco-Liberal---Democratic-Republican-Anything to beat Grant, papers have set up an immense howl over it. They vilify and blackguard the able Senator in every way a set of mongrel curs can. But then we expected that of them. They are doing all in their power to carry the State for Greeley and Woodson, but I think it a useless expenditure of ammunition. There are Grant and Wilson Turnouts and torchlight processions here nearly every night. The colord voters are solid for the hero of Vicksburg and Appomatox.

The St. Louis Times, a mongrel paper of this city has had a tremendous upheaving of bile, because of the refusal of a German paper published here to fall down and worship the poor old man whom they want for president.

I saw bets yesterday offered two to one on Grant. If we had a few papers here like the NORTH CAROLINIAN, we could insure the State for both our candidates for President and for Govenor. Thos. H. Tittman, Chairman of the Locofoco Liberal State Com. came out in a paper a few days ago, which he had privately circulated among the members of said Com. bewailing the unfairness with which the Liberals had been treated in the local Conventions by their Dem. friends. He says that all the offices that were worth having had been confered on Democrats instead of having been equally distributed among the "Allied forces." He also says he thinks it unfair and does not doubt that a majority of the Committee will agree with him. If they do not he offers to withdraw. It has kicked up quite a muss in the mongrel camp, and already they accuse him of favoring Grant's election. The "Anything to beat Grant" gentry have it reported that Merriman of "Swepson Rail Road" fame thinks of contesting the North Carolina election. I was told this myself by one of them, I simply asked him if his friend Merriman had gotton through with that suit yet, that he was to bring against Sen. Pool, for franking "Read and Circulate." He said he hadn't heard about that.

Most of the honest Democrats here say, that they prefer to support an honest open enemy like Grant, than vote for one disguised in the garb of Democracy like the traitor Greeley is. Upon the whole we think the Union is safe for Grant and Wilson despite the exertions of the K. K.

"We'll rally round the flag boys
We'll rally once again,
Singing the battle cry of freedom."

Yours

MARRIAGE OF THE DAUGHTER OF MR. JAY, UNITED STATES MINISTER AT VIENNA.

Vienna, Oct. 4.—Gen. Von Schweinitz, the German Ambassador, at Vienna, was married to-day to Miss Jay, the daughter of Hon. John Jay, the American Minister to Austria.

THE ANDES INSURANCE COMPANY.

Cincinnati, Oct. 4.—A meeting of the directors and stockholders of the Andes Insurance Company was held to-day, They reported a deficit of $221,000 in excess of the liabilities over the assets, and the stock all gone. They resolved to postpone further assessments until the January meeting, and to make every effort to avoid abandoning the Company.

A COLORED FAMILY COMPELLED TO SEEK REFUGE IN FRANKFORT—A MASKED VITITATION, WHIPPING AND WARNING.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4.—On the 3d inst., Bazel Simpson, an old colored man, with all his sons, sons-in-law, cows, hogs, horses, and in fact, with everything he could move, came into Frankfort, the capital of our State, for safety. They say that the Ku Klux, to the number of twenty or thirty, visited their homes the night before, whipped all of them they could catch, and ordered them to leave within twenty hours. These families of negroes are represented to be sober industrious, owning lands on which they live in Bald Knob Precinct, about ten miles from the capital, and having fine crops of tobacco, corn, etc., which they are compelled to abandon for the Ku Klux to use up. This is one of the beauties of the local self-government af the Greeley platform.

SENTIMENT AT CURTIN'S HOME—FIFTEEN THOUSAND REPUBLICANS AT A MEETING—ILLUMINATION AND TORCH-LIGHT PROCESSION.

Bellefonte, Penn., Oct. 4.—The outpouring to-night at Curtin's home, and in a largely Democratic county, was the grandest industrial and political demonstration ever witnessed in Central Pennsylvania. The town was thoroughly illuminated and bunting was displayed everywhere, and every avenue was packed with earnest and thoroughly enthusiastic voters. Fully 3,000 voters, with club uniforms, were in line, and the assemblage at the speakers' stands numbered not less than 15,000, Ex-Gov. Pollock, Judge Linn, Messrs. Carr, Dony and Manning delivered telling addresses. Two of Ex-Governor Curtin's brothers were Vice-Presidents, and every voting relative wore a Grant, Wilson and Hartranft cap and cape. Judge Linn, whom the Democrats have claimed as a co-worker and a personal and life-long friend of Curtin, delivered an able speech for Hartranft from the same stand that Curtin occupied on Saturday last. It had the profoundest effect, and no one now connects Curtin's name with anything like influence.

The New York Tribune need not lie so like a tombstone, if it is writing the epitaph of the Democratic party.—Ohio State Journal.

A DRUG STORE WORTH SEEING!

To the Editor of the North Carolinian

During a recent visit to your little City I was among other things attracted by the new Drug Store of Dr. J. N. BUTT, No. 75 Road Street, and I cannot resist the impulse to ask your readers to call and see it, as it is not surpassed by any you will meet in the South, not in Baltimore will you find one more elegantly fitted up except its deficiency in gas lights which the Doctor hopes to supply soon. It is a two story brick building, 65 by 27 feet, with dwelling above. The lower story is divided into Dispensing Room, Office, Ware Room and Laboratory. The Store Room is very light. The front being entirely of plate glass, nine pieces 90 inches long, with two doors and one window, glass 56 x 90. The doors being double, shut one upon the other, and when open, as in summer, are folded back into a recess to the wall, making a straight line with the door and an elegant finish. The doors and flanges to the same being of plate glass, 90 inches long, does not impede the light open or shut. The floor is almost even with the pavement and is covered with a carpet of cocoa matting. There are two counters on either side, 12 feet long, beautifully white splendidly finished, and of good design with Italian marble tops. Their ends 8 feet from the doors, pass at right angle to the wall. On the right hand one is a Tennessee Marble Fountain, and on the other an Aquarium of Gold and other Fish. On either side between the door and counter, is a fine silver mounted walnut Show Case, 5 feet high, fastened to the wall, a beautiful and attractive ornamens to display Fancy Articles, and in the rear a Poison Case of the same kind. Three fine silver mounted and one plate glass Prescription Case, with scroll and clock on top, and one fine balance scale adorn the counters. There are over 120 drawers which make a fine display, they are of sweet gum varnished, which is the prettiest wood that could be used. The shelves are supported on iron brackets, at the terminus of which, 3 feet from the ceiling, is a snow white cornice, interlined with two istrips of gilt moulding. The wall and entire store is pure white except the drawers and when lighted presents a very imposing display

Last but not least, is the "little jewel" of an office, which is so much needed by every business man. The Doctor is doing, as he tells us, an extensive and lucrative office practice, It is fitted up in fine style, with every modern necessity, and examinations are made with as much privacy as in your own home. The Laboratory is not yet finished, but when done will be a very responsible part of the establishment. The Doctor keeps a large stock of goods pertaining to the Drug Trade.

GRAND GIFT CONCERT

Postponed to Dec. 7, 1872.

THE SECOND GRAND GIFT CONCERT in aid of the Public Library in Kentucky, announced for September 28, has been postponed to December 7. 1872, because the accumulation of orders the few days before the drawing made it physically impossible to fill them without a few days' delay, and as a short postponement was inevitable, it was determined to defer it to a time that would make a full drawing sure by the sale of all the tickets.

The money necessary to pay in full all the offered gifts is now upon deposit in the Farmer's and Drovers' Bank, as will be seen by the following certificate of the Cashier:

FARMERS' AND DROVERS' BANK.
LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 26, 1872.

This is to certify that there is now on deposit in this bank over half a million of dollars to the credit of the Gift Concert fund, $500,000 of which is held by this bank as Treasurer of the Public Library of Kentucky to pay off all gifts to be awarded at the drawing.

R. S. VEACH, Cashier.

1,000 Prizes, amounting to

$500,000 IN CASH,

will be awarded, the highest prizes being $100, 000, $50,000, $25,000, and down in regular gradation to $100, which is the lowest.

The drawing will positively and unequivocally take place December 7. Agents are peremptorily reuqired to close sales and make returns November 25, in order to give ample time for final arrangements. Orders for tickets or applications for circulars should be addressed to

HORNER'S MARYLAND

SUPER-PHOSPHATE.

(We conrt the Chemist's inqury.)

After 23 years' experience in the Fertilizing business, and after establishing a wide reputation for the purity and excellence of his Rone Dust, the subscriber has been induced to prepare a Phosphate suitable to the requirements and every way worthy the attention of the Southern Farmer.

The "MARYLAND" it a juvinator and permanent improver of the soil. It simulates equal to Peruvian Guano, and sustains equal to Bone, being composed almost entirely of these ingredients, with a very liberal per centage of Potash in the residum. There is no adulterator nor inferior article used.—every particle of the Phosbhate being of essentiay benefit to the land. Neither pains nor expense have been spared in its preparation, and we claim for it the greatest benefit to the farmer from the smallest outlay.

For Cotton, Wheat and Corn, and as a general stimulant and ailment for worn and impoverished land there can be nothing superior It is warranted to run as high in Ammonia and higher in Bone Phosphate than any other fertilizer in the market.

Price $50 per ton, in new bags. No charge for delivery.

BONE DUST $45, BONE MEAL $50, DISSOLVED BONE $42, our own manufacture, in new bogs; Eastern and Western BONE DUST $35. PERUVIAN GUANO delivered from Peruvian Government Warehouse at lowest rates. No charge for delivery.

THE GREAT SOUTHERN

TOBACCO SUSTAIN

AND LAND RENEWER.

The Sustain is a specific restorer of the exhausted properties of impoverished and over strained land, and will generously repay the cost of its outlay in the quality and quantity, of the Tobacco Crop, besides permonently improvinn the soil and raising it to its virgin standard.

It gives vigor to the young plant, promotes its rapid growth, and insures, in the matured crop a thickened, heavy leaf.

It is prepared similarly to the Maryland except that it contains much more potash and other Tobacco forming properties.

☞ $50 PER TON. NO CHARGE FOR DELIVERY.

☞ Frequent showers are now in order.

☞ Etherial mildness has come this way again.

☞ JOHN SMITH died of acute lightning at Wilmington, Ill.

☞ Georgia gave a Democratic majority at the late election.

☞ ANTON GOOD of St. Louis is bad. He whipped his wife the other day.

☞ The busy burglar is making hay while the moon shines in Omaha.

☞ Cotton picking is the amusement these days, next comes the golden corn.

☞ One of the most charming things about Mrs. PERE HYACINTHE is her $75,000.

☞ We understand that Capt. WISE has purchased a half interest in the new steamer.

☞ Letters Patent have been granted to Messrs. ROBINSON and BAKER on the log canter invention.

☞ Our friend CHAS. H. ROBINSON has returned from the North; likewise Mr. BROWER and family.

☞ W. O. SHANNON'S store was broken into on Tuesday night and goods to the amount of $150 stolen.

☞ A lawsuit was lately finished in London that had been on the docket one hundred and forty-seven years.

☞ E. EMERSON, of Leicester, Mass., is 101 years old, and has just had his measure taken for a new suit of cloths.

☞ Those disposed to grumble at the weather should remember the couplet:

"October showers
Bring May flowers."

☞ The new Roman Catholic cathedral to be erected in Newark, N. J., will cost over $1,000,000, and the bishop's house $250,000.

☞ HECLA HOLLYWOOD'S communication comes to hand too late for this week's paper. Will give it a place in our next.

☞ I caught her gently by the arm,
My gentle black-eyed Kate.
She squealed "Let go, you cussed fool,
You hurt my vaccinate."

☞ The editor acknowledges the receipt of a complimentary to the Fair of the Carolinas at Charlotte, N. C., which will be held from Oct. 22d to 29th. We hope everybody else will go even if we can't.

☞ E. W. MILLS Esq., of Sterling, Ill., and his wife, (a daughter of Senator POOL,) are spending a few days in town. We understand Mr. MILLS holds a valuable appointment in the Treasury Department at Washington.

☞ Since the Maine election HORACE GREELEY has taken to agriculture again. He has just sent a circular to his friends at the South advising them to plant corn and sugar cane together, so as to raise Johnny cake with the molasses on.—St. Louis Globe.

☞ The Greeley Club meeting last week was a fizzletysquirt, and "blowout." Nobody much came, one speaker "blowed" a little and then they "blowed" out the lights and went home to dream of "shaking hands" with the "cussed Radicals"—or shaking fists at them, we don't know which.

☞ The meeting of the Medical society advertised in last issue took place on the 5th, inst and organized by electing Dr. D. T. KREBS President, and Dr. SAUNDERS Sec'y, and adjourned to meet again at Dr. KREB's office on Saturday Oct. 16th, at 2 o' clock P. M. with special invitation to all Physicians to attend.

☞ The attempt of California to acclimatise the cashmere goat promises success, the animal attaining a larger size and yielding a finer fleece than in its native India. There are estimated to be ten thousand cashmeres in the State, and the fleece, according to the grade, is worth from 25 cents up to $1 25 per pound.

☞ A Vermont farmer was startled while hoeing corn recently by seeing a rhinoceros coming towards him, plowing a furrow like a steam plow with his horn. The farmer, at first took it for a potato bug of the new style but the arrival of a party of showmen in search of the insect explained things.

☞ Among the Northern arivals we notice Mr. KENYON and three sons from Ithaca, N. Y., and Mr. PATTERSON and Mr. HOOKER. The Messrs. KENYON have brought with them a model little Steamer which "walks the water like a thing of life." We hope they and more of the kind from busy old Thompkins County will come down here and help build up our waste places

☞ Our readers will see by Messrs LOWENBERG JACOBS &o's advertisement that they have removed their store to Nos. 22 and 24 West side Market Square. They are now occupying a splendid Iron Front Building three stories 30 x 120 feet, and notwithstanding their prosperity they continue to warmly greet all their customers whether they come to buy a paper of pins, or a bale of cassimers.

☞ The Colored Free School opened in this City on Monday morning, Oct. 7th with about 50 scholars. Miss LIZZIE THOMPSON, Teacher.

☞ THOMAS N. RAMSAY, Gen'l Deputy I. O. of G. T., will address the citizens of E. City, on the Temperance question, on Monday, Oct. 28th, 1872, at the Court House.

☞ Just before going to press we received from the Supt. Pub. Instruction an advertisement of the sale of swamp lands. It comes too late for insertion this week, but will go in our next issue.

☞ At a recent bull-fight in Marseilles an enraged bull sprang over the arena barrier and struck out through the crowd, injuring a number of people before he was stopped by a mortal thrust from a soldier. In the confusion all the other bulls escaped.

☞ Here is an original gem, which appears on an Arkansas tombstone:

Grim death has taken darling little Jerry,
Only son of Joseph and Sirena Howells;
Seven days he wrestled with the dysentery,
And then he perished in his little bowels.
Perhaps it was the bottle that killed our darling Jerry—
It always seemed to hurt his stomach's tone;
Now up in heaven he'll grow fat and merry,
For there's no nursing bottles where he's gone.

☞ We call attention to the Republican Mass Meetings in Chowan and Perquimans counties as follows—Belvidere Oct. 28th, Ward's Store Oct. 29th, New Hope Oct. 30th, Smalls X Roads Oct. 31st, Bethel Nov. 1st, Edenton Nov. 2d. Eminent speakers will be in attendance at each of the above named places. Let the people attend and hear the truth.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Antiquarian.—A sea horse is a horse that lives in the sea, and from the best information which we can get on the subject, they are descended from the animals lost by Pharao while chasing the Israelites across the Red Sea. They are said to be very fine animals, and Neptune, a gentleman of large means, claims to have a matched span that can make their mile in 2.17½.

Astronomer.—The "Milky Way" was caused by the cow when she "jumped over the moon." (See the poem entitled "hey, diddle, diddle, etc."

Patriot.—There are many versions of the "little hatchet" story. James Parton votes the whole of them lies. We will give you one which we heard, and which we expect is as correct as any of them, and will let it go in at the regular subscription price of the paper without extra charge:

"There was once a hen that laid a nice, round egg, over which she cackled immensely. It was the pride of the whole neighborhood, and she laid it away carefully, and then went on a long journey to her Uncle's in the Country. During her absence, her child, named George Washington, took it into his head to set on this beautiful egg. After the apse of over three weeks the parent hen returned, and looking for her egg found only the broken shells. Alas! she exclaimed, who has wrought this mischief, and she called her child George, and pointing to the empty shells said, tell me my child, who has done this, and George burst into tears and exclaimed, Ma! I can't lie, "I did it with my little hatchet."

Washington, Oct. 4.—Mr. Mori, Japanese Charge d'Affaires asserts that he sent in his resignation last Winter, and has remained at the request of the Japanese Government. Mr. Mori received dispatches from Japan, via San Francisco, today, denying the charges of national retrogression. The dispatch also says that Gen Capron and Perkins Smith have not been discharged, and Mr. Mori denies having officially engaged Mr. Northrop to found a system of education in Japan.

DEATHS.

WHITE.—On the 1st inst., JOHN WARREN, infant son of Geo. A. and S. Ugenia White. Aged 2 years and 4 months.

POOL.—At this place, on Sept. 30th. CHARLOTTA KNOX POOL. Aged 77 years.

BENBERRY.—In Chowan County, N. C., on the 16th day of September, 1872, WILLIAM BENBERRY Esq. Aged 73 years, 1 month and 4 days.

A kind and loving husband and father, he leaves behind a strickened family, whose sole support and solace in this their hour of trial is God. He was a consistent member of the Baptist church for many years. A true and trusting Christian he camely fell asleep in the hope of everlasting life in that heaven, where sorrows and troubles are known no more.

Father farewell, we yield thee to the tomb with many a bitter tear,
Tho' 'twas not meet a soul like thine should longer tarry here,
Fond, clustering hopes have sunk with thee, that earth can ne'er restore
Love casts a garland on thy turf, that may not blossom more;
But thou art where each dream of hope shall in fruition fade,
And love immortal and refined glow on without a shade.

JOB MOSES' SIR JAMES CLARKE'S FEMALE PILLS

are extensively COUNTERFEITED. Dishonest Druggists endeavor to sell the counterfeits to make greater profits. The genuine have the name of Job Moses on each package. All others are worthless imitations. The GENUINE Pills are now unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. They moderate all excesses and remove all obstructions, from whatever cause.

TO MARRIED LADIES

they are particularly suited. They will in a short time bring on the monthly period with regularity; and although very powerful, contain nothing hurtful to the constitution. In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affections, Pains in the Back and Limbs, Fatigue on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics and Whites, they will effect a cure when all other means have failed. The circulars around each package give full directions and advice, or will be sent free to all writing for them, sealed from observation.

N. B.—In all cases where the GENUINE cannot be obtained, One Dollar enclosed to the Sole Proprietor, JOB MOSES, 18 Cortlandt St., New York, will insure a bottle of the genuine, containing Fifty Pills, by return mail, securely sealed from any knowledge of its contents.

RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

BRYAN'S PULMONIC WAFERS

Cure COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, SORE THROAT, HOARSENESS, DIFFICULT BREATHING, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION AND LUNG DISEASES. They have no taste of medicine, and any child will take them. Thousands have been restored to health that had before despaired. Testimony given in hundreds of cases. Ask for BRYAN'S PULMONIC WAFERS. Price 25 cents per box. JOB MOSES, Proprietor, 18 Cortlandt Street, New York.

THE GREAT FRENCH REMEDY.

DELAMARRE'S SPECIFIC PILLS.
Prepared by J. GARANCIERE,
No. 214 Rue Lombard, Paris.

These pills are highly recommended by the entire Medical Faculty of France as the very best remedy in all cases of Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness; Nightly, Daily or Premature Exhaustion; Sexual Weakness or Impotency; Weakness arising from Secret Habits and Sexual Excesses; Relaxation of the Genital Organs; Weak Spine; Deposits in the Urine, and all the ghastly train of Diseases arising from Overus or Excesses. They cure when all other remedies fail. Pamphlet of Advice in each box, or will be sent Free to any address. Price $1 per Box. Sent by mail, securely sealed from all observation, on receipt of price. OSCAR G. MOSES, 18 CORTLANDT ST., NEW YORK, Sole General Agent for America.

OLD THINGS HAVE PASSED AWAY.—This is at least true of the old method of treating the long abused and much abused human body. It is no longer considered wise to put a patient to the torture in order to cure him of a disease in which pain is already undermining the energies of his system. True science ranges itself on the side of nature, and endeavors to assist her in her fight against disease. This is the province of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most approved tonic ever advertised in this country. It may be recommended as a fall medicine, par excellence; for it is in the fall that biliousness, dyspepsia and malfarious fevers are especially prevalent. The frame, exhausted by the heats of summer, is relaxed and feeble at its close, and requires, we may say demands artificial assistance. Afford it that assistance in occasional does of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the evils referred to may be escaped. Throughout the far West, and on the steaming alluvial of the Southern rivers, all the varieties of periodical fever are probably rife to-day. Had a course of Hostetter's Bitters been commenced by the sufferers a month ago, i. e., before the unhealthy season set in, even eighths of them would in all probability be in their usual health at the present time. So much for want of forecaste. So much for not keeping in the house, and using daily, the best safeguard against epidemic and endemic fevers.

As flocks of imposters and imitators are trying to follow in the wake of the great American remedy, therefore be sure that the article you buy is genuine and verified by the proper trade-marks. The true article can only be obtained in bottles. Beware of the spurious bitters sold by the gallon or in keg.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Ills that Flesh are Heir to.

Are many, but a remedy for them all is furnished by nature. There is no doubt that for every disease there is an antidote in the vegetable kingdom. The aboriginees were the victims of many and loathsome maladies, yet they found in the wilds of their forests remedies sure and powerful. Acting on this belief Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight is offered the public as a most highly concentrated vegetable compound, possessing extraordinary power for the cure of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Scrofula, Ulcers, Swelling of the Glands, Eruptions of the Skin, Female Diseases, Liver Complaint, Secondary Syphilis, the effect of mercury, &c. It is a most powerful alterative and Blood purifier, and at the same time so harmless that it may be used by all.

Watch out for Chills and Fever, and prepare the system for resisting its attack by using Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye is used in Europe and America.

FOUTZ'S

CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

THE NEW DISCOVERY

In Chemical and Medical Science.

Dr. E. F. GARVIN'S

SOLUTION & COMPOUND ELIXIR OF

TAR

FIRST AND ONLY SOLUTION ever made in one mixture of ALL THE TWELVE valuable active principals of the well known curative agent,

PINE TREE TAR,

UNEQUALED in Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, and consumption.

CURES WITHOUT FAIL

A recent cold in three to six hours; and also by its VITALIZING, PURIFYING and STIMULATING effects upon the general system, is remarkably efficacious in all

DISEASES OF THE BL

AGRICULTURAL, HORTICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC MATTERS.

A Useless Waste.

Concentrated manures are now used in a very wide range of farming districts, both North and South. This has always been the case in the cotton-growing States, and when the articles are pure the planters say the results warrant the outlay. The same thing has also come to be true in those parts of New-England where the staple production is tobacco. Unable to procure yard manure for this exhaustive crop the growers are to resort to bone dust, superphosphate and guano. In the vicinity of large cities, where "trucking is carried on, more or less of these fertilizers are employed for the second and third crop—that is, a heavy dressing of yard manure is used in the Spring for cabbages, beets, and onions, and when these are taken off and the ground prepared for celery or spinags, Peruvian guano, bone dust, or super-phosphate is applied in the drill. Now either of these special manures is expensive, and when a farmer pays $50 to $70 for a tun he ought to see to it that no loss arises from any cause. But there is a general carelessness in this matter which amounts simply to a wanton waste. It is quite comon, for instance, to see farmers, usually shrewd and economical sowing dry guano of a windy day, when, of course, a large portion of the particles are necessarily carried off in the atmosphere and deposited on adjoining fields. This is all the more inexcusable when we remember that this loss can be readily prevented. The manure in question should always be mixed, two or three days in advance, with at lenst three times its bulk of moist soil, or in case there is want of leisure for this, mix in the field just before sowing. The mass should be so damp that when a handful of it is thrown on the grown no fine dust can be seen to rise, and under no circumstances should any of these costly manures be applied without such treatment.

Pasturing Pigs.

The chief dependence in fattening pork, says The Rural World, should be on good pasturage, Clover pasturage is considered the best, but all kinds of pasturage are relished by swine, and they thrive on it as readily as other stock. It is not economical to keep hogs up in pens and yards and feed them by hand every mouthful they eat; they should have pastures just as much as cattle or sheep or horses. They must be taught to take care of themselves, and they will gladly do it if the pasture is good and supplied with water. An ear or two of corn to each head is, however, highly advisable. In fattening hogs a great deal of unnecessary labor is given. Instead of going to the fields and gathering, husking, and hauling the corn to hogs in the pens and yards, they should be made to do their own harvesting and to feed themselves, Portable or movable fences should be ready on any farm to partition off such portion of the corn-field as the owner thinks can be most profitably used by the hogs. In this the hogs are turned as soon as the corn is glazed, and then they will take care of themselves. Many think a great deal of waste will thus occur, but such is not the case—the hogs will waste very little; They soon learn to knock down only what they want to eat, and they will pick up the grain clean. The stock hogs can afterward be turned in so that everything can be saved.

Keep up your Fires

There is one cause of sore throat and lung diseases which has hardly been thought of and deserves to be reprimanded. That cause is chilly houses in damp weather. Nothing in the limits of bad housekeeping more excites the ire of a sensitive person than the poor economy of putting out fires as soon as the almanac marks the time when warm weather is due. After the first of May most housekeepers have stoves taken down and the heaters removed, leaving the family to shiver through the May storms and chilly mornings in June. The cause of at lerst one-third of the diseases common in spring we believe to be the half-chilled conditionin in which the people force themselves to live. When women go about the house wrapped in shawls, it is a sure sign that fires are needed. One grand maxim of life is to keep comfortable, and there is much more in that sentence than most people can see. It does not enjoin mere self indulgence, but it compels one to keep one's own body and mind in the best working order. You can't be useful or goodhumored when suffering, and regard for others, as well as your own happiness will prompt you to do both. So have the fires lighted if you are cold, even in August.

Cooking Vegetables.

Why should vegetables be washed in rather warm water first then in cold, to cleanse them from sand and insects? The hot water, which must be hotter than tepid, causes the insects and sand to fall out at once. Insects do not always dislike cold water and salt, but the hot water kills them.

It must be understood that only a small handful of greens or one head of cabbage at a time must be washed, and then instantly thrown into the cold water, which crisps and thoroughly cleanses them. Spinach, leeks, celery and seakale, are thus rendered very clean, and, moreover, are very rapidly cleansed. It is worse than useless to attempt to cleanse vegetables in salt and water. The hardness which salt creates in the water prevents all cleansing properties. The salt may kill the insects (it does not always do this,) but they stick on hard and fast; the hot water makes them fall out at once, and the cold water crisps and also blanches them.—Mrs. Warren.

To Clean Lamp Chimneys.

When you wish to clean a lamp chimney hold a linen cloth against one end o the chimney and place the other end in your mouth, breathe in it until it is covered inside with moisture, push the cloth into the chimney with a smooth slender stick, and rub it around until the moisture is absorbed; repeat the process and breathe over the outer surface also; rub this with a cloth until dry, and you have a clean, bright chimney. Soft newspaper will take the place of a linen cloth. Do not use cotton cloth on any glassware.

Drying Herbs.

Herbs for drying for future use should be cut just about the time they are coming into flower. Dry them in the shade, and after sufficiently dry to put away, tie them in bunches and hang in a cool shed, or place them loosely between paper and stow away in cupboards or drawers: the last mode is by far the cleanest and most approved plan with the best housekeepers. Some, indeed, powder the leaves at once after drying, and put away in bags ready for use.

Some men are always bragging of their ancesters and thoir great decent. That's what's the matter with them—their great decent. Such men always remind me of an old goose trying to hatch out a paving stone.—Billings.

He that poisons literature, poisons the fountain of life. Let not that man be praised who defiles the thought an soils the hearts of his readers.

SOUTHERN CLAIMS AGAINST THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

Loyal citizens of North Carolina and other Southern States, will be pleased to learn that Congress at the last session passed a law for a commission to be appointed to examine and report on all claims that may be presented to them for Quartermaster and Commissary stores furnished the Federal Army during the late war.

The undersigned are prepared to furnish blanks, and give all information to those having claims—and to prosecutel the same to final settlement. Having received the endorsement for ability, &c., from the Hon. Senators Messrs. Pool and Abbott and the Representatives from North Carolina—we believe that we can give satisfaction to all who entrust their claims to us.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE.
OF VALUABLE
NORTH CAROLINA LANDS, FOR SALE BY
GEORGE D. POOL.
Real Estate Agent,
ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalisis and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where: and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it!

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, and all in good order. It is one of the finest locations to be found any where for custom work, and for getting good saw logs easily and cheaply. Price $4,000 cash.

Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses, all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 13 acres of land for $2.000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $300.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotauk county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Also one other tract in Pasquotank county, containing 116 acres, within one mile of the town with fine buildings, mostly cleared and in cultivation. Price $25 per acre, one half cash, balance in 12 months.

A valuable site for a hotel at Nag's Head, 40 miles from Elizabeth City, and 50 miles from Edenton. This is situated immediately on the Ocean, and is a famous Summer resort for invalids, and those seeking health, comfort, and amusements during the summer months. It is in direct communication by steamboats and railroad with all parts of North Carolina, Virginia, and the North; and is equal in natural advantages to Newport, or Cape May. Visitors flock to this famous summer resort by hundreds and thousands, and a large amount of money can be made by a hotel. A charter has been obtained from the Legislature of N. C., for a joint stock company to build the hotel. There is now an old hotel on the spot, which could be cheaply repaired and bought for $3.000. This hotel, though imperfectly kept, cleared the proprietor last season, over $3.000. For a man or a company, having some capital, this is one of the finest chances to make money at hotel keeping to be found anywhere. The early attention of the public is invited to this property.

A fine steam saw and grist mill at Hertford, the county seat of Perquimans County, N. C., 18 miles from Elizabeth City. This mill has a fifty horse power engine, now in good running, two pairs of best French burr stones, and two upright saws. The house has a brick basement, and the building is large and in good order. There is one and a half acres of land belonging to this property, and a good two story dwelling, and other out-houses. The section of country adjacent abounds in the finest yellow pine, cypress, ash, poplar, and other valuable timber. This property originally cost $15.000, and is now offered at forced sale for the low price of $3.500, $7.00, cash, and the balance in six equal instalments, six months apart each with interest.

A fine farm and fishery in same county. The farm contains 400 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has got buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000, $7,000 cash, balance on easy times.

A store at South Mills, in Camden county, 20 miles from E. City, and 20 miles from Norfolk, lying on the canal where steamers pass daily. A fine chance for merchandize. Store is large with dwelling above containing six rooms, is in first rate order, has office, kitchen, dairy, and other necessary outhouses. Goods to the amt. of $50,000 per annum can be sold here, and at large profits. A splended stand for a country retail store. Price $2,500—one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable tract of land in Camden county, at South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp Canal, lying on the canal for two miles, containing over 900 acres of land—two-thirds cleared, and in a fine state of cultivation, with good buildings, &c.; balance in valuable timber. Price $12,000, one-third cash, balance in one and two years, interest from January, 1871. This is a valuable farm for corn, wheat, and vegetables, and being midway between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, and located where steamers pass by the door daily, is a desirable and cheap property.

A fine farm of 600 acres within six miles of E. City, one mile from navigable water, and the best cotton farm in the State. It is also well adapted to raising corn and wheat. This farm has a splended two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one-third cash, balance in one and two years with interest. Title reserved.

Sixteen houses and lots in Elizabeth City, with good dwellings, out-houses, &c. Prices and terms reasonable.

A valuable farm in Perquimans county, N. C. near navigable water. Has a fine dwelling-house with ten rooms, in splended order, with splended barns and stables—all in first rate order. The farm is very productive in corn, oats, wheat, cotton and clover. It is one of the finest farms in the State and is now in good cultivation, contains 585 acres of land, about three-fourths cleared and under cultivation. Price $10,000, one-third cash January 1, next balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $10,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 miles wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, binds it on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A Farm of 200 acres within one mile of Elizabeth City, with good two story dwelling, large barn and stables, and all necessary outhouses, orchard of fine fruit trees, and a large number of ornamental trees and shrubbery around dwelling. This farm is on one of the most public roads in the County—is in a high state of cultivation—has fine and durable fences, &c. Altogether, it is the richest land and most desirable location, anywhere in the neighborhood of the town. Price $6000—one-half cash, balance in easy payments.

PREPARED WHEAT

AND

SUGAR OF MILK.

Patented July 23d, 1872.

A FARINACEOUS FOOD FOR INVALIDS AND INFANTS.

By the peculiar process in which this preparation is made, all the flesh forming constituents—EARTHY and SALINE elements of the grain are retained, with none of the STARCH, all of which being converted into Dextrine. It contains all the Lime, Sulphur, Phosphorus, Iron and Manganese for the animal juices, and Gum and Fecula for respiration and fatty tissue, with the proteine compounds (Gluten, Albumen &c.) from which nerve and muscular tissues are formed.

It is believed by the most intelligent men that much of the suffering, sickness and mortality of mankind is traceable to deficient or faulty nutrition. The same cause may also be assigned the frequent disapointment of physicians in the result of the action of most approved remedies. We feel sure that this article will supply the deficiency.

Sugar of Milk.

[LACTIN.]

Is a chrystalized sugar, obtained from the whey of cow's milk by evoporation. It is manufactured largely in Switzerland and the Bavarian Alps as an article of food and for medical purposes.

It has been used considerably in England as a non-nitrogenous article of diet in Consumption and other Pulmonary Diseases, and with excelent effect in extreme Irritability of the Stomach, (see Wood & Bache's Dispensatory.)

We manufacture 2 grades :—No. 1, in yellow wrapper, ground coarse, to be eaten as cracked wheat, with cream. No. 2, white wrapper, is ground into Flour for Puddings, Blanc-Mange and Bread.

DIRECTIONS.

For Making Mush with No. 1, Ground Coarce.—Mix four tablespoonfuls of the Wheat with a gill of cold water; rub into a smooth paste; then pour it into a pint of boiling water, stirring briskly, boil for 20 minutes. To be eaten with rich cream.

For Puddings, &c. use No. 2, Ground Fine.—Mix a tablespoonfnl of the food with a small quantity of cold water rub to a smooth paste; add to one-half pint of boiling water, constantly stirring, and boil about 8 minutes over a moderate fire. Add milk and flavor to taste. For bread, use as ordinary flour.

PRICE 50 CENTS A POUND.

Our Platform.

The Republican Party of the United States assembled in National Convention, in the City of Philadelphia, on the 5th and 6th days of June, 1872, again declares its faith, appeals to its history, and announces its position upon the questions before the country.

First—During eleven years of supremacy, it has accepted, with grand courage, the solemn duties of the time. It surpressed a gigantic rebellion; emancipated four millions of slaves; decreed the equal citizenship of all and established universal suffrage. Exhibiting unparalleled magnanimity, it criminally punished no man for political offenses, and warmly welcomed all who proved their loyalty by obeying the laws and dealing justly with their neighbors. It has steadily decreased with a firm hand the resultant disorders of a great war, and initiated a wise policy toward the Indians. The Pacific Railroad and similar vast enterprises have been generously aided and successfully conducted, the public lands freely given to actual settlers, Immigration protected and encouraged, and a full acknowledgement of the naturalized citizens' rights secured from European Powers. A uniform national currency has been provided, repudiation frowned down, the national credit sustained under most extraordinary burdens, and new bonds negotiated at low rates. The revenues have been carefully collected and honestly applied. Despite the annual large reduced of rates of taxation, the public debt has been reduced during Gen. Grant's Presidency at the rate of one hundred million dollars a year. A great financial crisis has been avoided, and peace and plenty prevail throughout the land. Menacing foreign difficulties have been peacefully and honorably compromised and the honor and power of the nation kept in high respect throughout the world. This glorious record of the past is the party's best pledge for the future. We believe the people will not intrust the Government to any party or combination of men composed chiefly of those who have resisted every step of this beneficial progress.

Second—Complete liberty and exact equality in the enjoyment of all civil political and public rights should be established and effectually maintained throughout the Union by efficient and appropriate State and Federal legislation. Neither the law nor its administration should admit of any discrimination in respect of citizens by reason of race-creed, color or previous condition of ser vice.

Third—The recent amendments to the National Constitution should be cordially sustained because they are right, no, merely tolerated because they are law, and should be caried out according to their spirit by appropriate legislation, the enforcement of which can be safely trusted only to the party that secured those amendments.

Fourth—The National Government should seek to maintain an honorable peace with all nations, protecting its citizens everywhere, and sympathizing with all peoples who strive for greater liberty.

Fifth—Any system of the civil service under which the subordinate position of the Government are considered rewards for mere party zeal is fatally demoralizing, and we therefore favor a reform of the system by laws which shall abolish the evils of patronage, and make honesty, efficiency and fidelity the essential qualifications for public position, without practically creating a life tenure of office.

Sixth—We are opposed to further grants of the public lands to corporations and monopolies, and demand that the national domain be set apart for free homes for the people.

Seventh—The annual revenues, after paying the current debts, should furnish a moderate balance for the reduction of the principal, and the revenue, except so much as may be derived from a tax on tobacco and liquors, be raised by duties upon importations, the duties on which should be so adjusted as to aid in securing remunerative wages to labor, and promote the industries, growth and prosperity of the whole country.

Eighth—We hold in undying honor the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the Union; their pensions are the sacred debt of the nation, and the widows and orphans of those who died for their country are entitled to the care of a generous and greatful people. We favor such additional legislation as will extend the bounty of the Government to all our soldiers and sailors who were honorably discharged, and who in the time of duty became disabled, without regard to the length of service or the cause of such discharge.

Ninth—The doctrine of Great Britain and other European Powers concerning allegiance—"Once a subject, always a subject"—having at last, through the efforts of the Republican Party been abandoned, and the American idea of the individual right to transfer his allegiance having been accepted by European nations, it is the duty of our Government to guard with zealous care the right of adopted citizens against the assumption of un uthorized claims by their former Government; and we urge the continual and careful encouragement and protection of voluntary immigration.

Tenth—The franking privilege ought to be abolished, and the way prepared for a speedy reduction in the rate of postage.

Eleventh—Among the questions which press for attention is that which concerns the relations of capital and labor, and the Republican Party recognize the duty of so shaping legislation as to secure full protection and the amplest field for capital and for labor, the creator of capital, the largest opportunities, and a just share of the mutual profits of these two great servants of civilization.

Twelfth—We hold that Congress and the President have only fulfilled an imperative duty in their measures for the surpression of violent and treasonable organizations in certain lately rebellious regions, and for the protection of the ballot-box, and therefore they are entitled to the thanks of the nation.

Thirteenth—We denounce repudiation of the public debt in any form or disguise as a national crime. We witness with pride the reduction of the principal of the debt, and of the rates of interest upon the balance, and confidently expect that our excellent national currency will be perfected by a speedy resumption of specie payments.

Fourteenth—The Republican Party is mindful of its obligations to the loyal women of America for their noble devotion to the cause of freedom. Their admission to wider fields of usefulness is received with satisfaction, and the honest demands of any class of citizens for additional rights should be treated with respectful consideration.

Fifteenth—We heartily approve the action of Congress in extending amnesty to those lately in rebellion, and rejoice in the growth of peace and fraternal feeling throughout the land.

Sixteenth—The Republican Party propose to respect the rights reserved by the people to themselves as carefully as the powers delegated by them to the State and the Federal Government. It disapproves of the resort to unconstutional laws for the purpose of removing evils by interference with rights not surrendered by the people to either the State or ation al Governments.

Seventeenth—It is the duty of the General Government to adopt such measures as will tend to encourage American commerce and ship-building.

Eighteenth—We believe that the modest patriotism, the earnest purpose, the sound judgment, the practical wisdom, the incorruptible integrity, and the illustrious services of Ulysses S. Grant have commended him to the heart of the American people, and, with him at our head, we start to-day upon a new march of victory.

What Horace Greeley Thinks of the Democratic Party.

EXTRACTS, RICH, RARE AND RACY.

Now that Mr. Greeley has become the leader of the Democracy, we present the following extracts from editorials of the New York Tribune, writen by Mr. Greeley during the forty years of his editorial life. They are refreshing, and will not nauseate Democrats who have lost all self-respect,—forsaken principle in their hunt for office,—and become first-class dirt-eaters. The extracts are as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE DISEASE.

"Mr. Webster was not only a gentleman, but he had the elements of moral greatness; and he had his faults as well. He failed only in one respect; and in this respect I differ from him—he wanted to be President, and I don't.—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

OUR GREATEST MAN.

"We have seen our greatest man, Mr. Chase, making the same blunder. I have seen men who had the disease early, and died of it at a very old age."—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

THE FATE OF GEN. CASS.

"Gen. Lewis Cass died at 82, and up to the day of his death he wanted to be President. No one ever escapes who catches the disease: he lives and dies in the delusion. Being a reader and an observer at an early age, I saw how it poisoned and paralyzed the best of our public men, and have carefully avoided it."—Horace Greeley, in 1866.

THE GOOD SENSE OF GEN. GRANT.

"We, at least, in our day, have a President-elect who did not try to be President. He was elected mainly on that account."—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

THE ENEMY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

"If the Democratic party were called upon to decide between Grant and myself, I know that their regard for what they must call principle would induce nine-tenths of them to vote against me. Why? I am a decided enemy of that party, even in its most respectable aspects."—Horace Greeley, in 1871.

PICTURES OF THE DEMOCRACY.

"Every one who chooses to live by pugilism or gambling or harlotry, with nearly every keeper of a tippling house, is politically a Democrat."—Horace Greeley.

IGNORANCE A DEMOCRATIC ALLY.

"If there were not a newspaper or a common school in the country, the Democratic party would be far stronger than it is."—Horace Greeley.

DEMOCRATIC ESSENTIALS.

"The essential articles of the Democratic creed [are] 'love rum and hate niggers.' The less one learns and knows, the more certain he is to vote the regular ticket from A to izzard."—Horace Greeley.

WHO ARE DEMOCRATS.

"We thereupon asked our contemporary to state frankly whether the pugilists, blacklegs, thieves, burglars, keepers of dens of prostitution, etc., etc., * * * were not almost unanimously Democrats."—Horace Greeley.

DEMOCRATIC VIRTUES.

"To smoke is a Democratic virtue; to chew is that virtue intensified; to drink rum is that virtue in the superlative."—Horace Greeley.

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATS'

"Point wherever you please to an election district which you will pronounce morally rotten, given up in great part to debauchery and vice; where voters subsist mainly by keeping policy-offices, gambling houses, grog-shops and darker dens of infamy, and that district will be found at nearly or quite every election giving a majority for that which styles itself 'the Democratic party.' Take all the haunts of debauchery in the land, and you will find nine tenths of their master spirits active partisans of that same Democracy. What is the instinct, the sympathetic chord, which attaches them so uniformly to this party? Will you consider?"—Horace Greeley.

REBEL DEMOCRACY.

"The brain, the heart, the soul of the present Democratic party is the rebel element at the South, with its Northern allies and simpathisers. It is rebel at the core to-day. It would come into power with the hate, the chagrin, the wrath, the mortification of ten bitter years to impel and guide its steps. It would devote itself to taking off or reducing tax after tax until the Treasury was deprived of the means of paying interest on the national debt, and would hail the tidings of national bankruptcy with unalloyed gladness and unconcealed exultation. Whatever chastisement may be deserved by our national sins, we must hope that this disgrace and humiliation will be spared us."—Horace Greely.

THE FEROCIOUS PROTECTIONIST."

"You only err as to the proper candidate. I am not the man you need. Your party is modestly Free Trade, and I am a ferocious Protectionist. I have no doubt that I might be nominated and elected by your help but it would place us all in a false position."—Horace Greeley to P. Donan, in 1871.

"THE BAYNOT LAW OF 1870"

"It is urged by the Democratic organs that the law is to be enforced in State and municipal elections. This is done to make it more obnoxions, if that be possible, to their party. But, unfortunately, this is an error. The law applies only to presidential and congressional election, though we heartily wish it could be made to apply to all others."—Horace Greeley.

THE KU KLUX LAW.

"I hold our Government bound by its duty of protecting our citizens in their fundamental rights, to pass and enforce laws for the extirpation of the excrable Ku Klux conspiricy; and, if it has not the power to do it, then I say our Government is no government, but a sham. I, therefore, on every proper occasion, advocated and justified the Ku Klux Act. I hold it especially desirable for the South; and, if it does not prove strong enough to effect its pourpose, I hope it will be made stronger and stronger."—Horace Greely in 1872!

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S LINEL SUCCESSOR.

"Many will be surprised at the President's hearty endorsement of civil service reform [in his message of 1870;] but he has been there all along. The President's summing up of the leading objects of his policy, and especially his desire to secure a pure and untrameled vote, must appeal cogently to the judgment and affections of the American people. He is Abraham Lincoln's lineal successor; and the popular heart beats in unison with his administration and his efforts. —Horace Greeley in 1870.
